Laminating Preserves Old Papers

A church that values old records sometimes has a problem on how to preserve them. Picture frames will show only one side of the important paper. Gluing a paper to a scrapbook may destroy the other side, and then there's the problem of the eventual disintegration of the paper itself.

Modern day lamination is the answer - a process by which Liberty Baptist Church is safeguarding its earliest and most precious records. The laminating process permanently seals a photograph or document between two sheets of plastic.

This is the task and challenge for a committee from Liberty Baptist Church, headed by Miss Annie Hancock. According to records now being laminated, Liberty Baptist Church was organized on August 7, 1834 (eleven years before Appomattox County was established in May of 1845.)

Others on the committee include Mrs. Florence Trent, Mrs. Willie Moses, Mrs. Mary Hogg, John Cole, Raymond Jamerson, Dr. E. C. Tutwiler and Robert Stubblefield.

According to the organization paper of 1834, there were eleven "constituted members" of Liberty: Archibald LeGrand, William Wooldridge, John Wooldridge, Nancy A. LeGrand, Catherine Wooldridge, Lyncha Gordon, Lizza Wooldridge, Mary Wooldridge, Rosetta Brooks and Betsy Wooldridge plus "Prissa Bird, a free person of colour."

The "Liberty meeting house" mentioned in the papers was located on the W. H. Abbitt farm about a mile east of what is now the town of Appomattox.

Miss Hancock says that the work is absorbing and that the committee has met for many hours to collect and classify the church's documents.

Miss Annie Hancock (left) is chairman of a committee working to preserve earliest church records of Liberty Baptist Church. The earliest paper available on the organization dates back to August 7, 1834, being held here by Barbara Reid, staff member of the Times-Virginian who operates the laminating equipment.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BOARD TO MEET

The Board of Directors of the Appomattox County Chambers of Commerce will meet on Thursday (tonight), March 4, at the Farmers National Bank at 7:30 p.m.

Officers, board members, and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Apple Butter Week

The Appomattox County Jaycees will be selling apple butter next week, March 7-14, to aid in the statewide project to obtain funds for Camp Virginia Jaycee. The camp is owned by the Virginia Jaycees and run by the Virginia Association for Retarded Children for the benefit of all retarded children in the state of Virginia. Apple butter is a popular product in every home and purchase of the item from a Jaycee will help the Jaycees reach their goal of $150.

Jaycees will sell the apple butter on Wednesday and Thursday nights of next week on a door to door basis. Plans call for booths in the downtown area on Saturday, March 13. The Jaycees want to give everyone in the county an opportunity to participate in this mental health project.

This year 2,000 children born in Virginia may live not to grow up. Theirs is not a mental illness, or a physical deformity, it is the condition of mental retardation. The mentally retarded may live only to remain as dependant as children or they may be trained and educated within their limitations to be self sufficient adults. A very important part of this rehabitation is the type of recreation program provided by Camp Virginia Jaycee. Directed by the Virginia Association for Retarded Children, the camp offers these children the opportunity to play together, developing coordination, independence and the self confidence necessary to the growth of intelligence. Every citizen can help by buying Old Virginia apple butter when you see it on sale or when a local Jaycee member visits your home. You may help reclaim one of Virginia's lost children.

County Teams Lead District

Varsity In Regional Play Thursday Night

Varsity Raiders, of Appomattox County High School, with an 18-3 record overall for the season will play Thursday night at seven o'clock in regional play-offs at Andrew Lewis High School, Salem. Their opponent: Addison High of Roanoke. Coach Stanley Thomas (center, front) says the fans' support during last week's Seminole District tournament play was "really great." Raiders are runners-up in that tourney with a hard fought 66 to 54 loss against the Altavista Colonels. Raiders' team includes (at front): Bruce Norconk, Coach Thomas and Ronnie McCoy. (Back row): Melton Chambers, Ricky Garrett, Steve Marshall, Welton Gafford, Henry Davis and LeRoy Robinson. (Not shown: Leon Robinson)

Raiderettes Win District Trophy

The Raiderettes of Appomattox County High School (above) were undefeated in regular season play and thus are Seminole District trophy winners. Raiderettes lost the tournament trophy in a hard-fought battle against Staunton River in the finals Saturday night (see the sports page for details.) Their outstanding record for this year is all the more impressive, says coach Louise Martin, considering the number of seniors lost last year. The Raiderettes' record for the past four years includes two district trophies won two years straight – and the fact that the team was top in the district last year but was not eligible for the championship. Shown above (in front with trophy) co-captains Kathy Martin and Becky Harris. Second row: Jane Garrette, Nancye Mathews, Cornelia Guill, Donna Smith, Susan Oliver, Lucy Martin. Third row: Sally Harvey, Pat Hudson, Jane Hix, Kay Paulette, Coach Mrs. Louise Martin, Mary Louise McCraw, Kathy Mitchell, Joan Coleman and Pat Ferguson.

Jaycees Win District Trophy

For the first time in the history of ACHS and Appomattox High School, Junior Varsity Raiders, under the coaching of Wilfred Rogers (3rd from right, back row) have won the Seminole District Trophy. Their season record overall is 16-2, including the agonizingly close defeat 62-60 at the hands of Nelson County in Saturday's tournament game in Lynchburg. Even so, Jayvees are part of Appomattox County High School's amazing season record for all teams of 55 wins against only 12 losses (including the eighth graders with their 8-5 record,) Jayvees, during the season played Gretna, Wm. Campbell, Rustburg, Nelson, Altavista, Buckingham, Randolph-Henry, Holy Cross, Brookville, Lined up (above) are:
